Buffy, quand tu auras une minute, on verra la liste des courses ensemble? Hi all, How do we translate grocery list and shopping list from english to french?shopping list = liste d'achats ?grocery list = ? Many thanks in advance!DM shopping list = liste des courses grocery list = liste d'picerie to say make a grocery list, is it simply 'faire une liste d'picerie'?thanks. En fait on dit "liste de courses" pour tout, picerie ou autres achats. Hi, Its a great forum and we can learn a lot of language here. It will definitely make life easy for a lot of people. Thanks Catalog Online Hi all, Which one is correct and if both which is more idiomatic? I go to the grocery store to buy goods or for buying goods. Thanks. It would be a strange use of the word goods what you buy at a grocery store is groceries. But the answer is that you use the infinitive to say that: I go there to buy my groceries. You must log in or register to reply here. Our fridge is bare except for some eggs. We need to do the grocery shopping today. Does the underlined part sound good? Should I change it into "buy some grocery?" Thanks. Our fridge is bare except for some eggs. We need to do the grocery shopping today. Does the underlined part sound good? Should I change it into "buy some grocery?" Thanks. I would say "We need to go grocery shopping today" ... do the grocery shopping today.This is fine if there are regular, routine "grocery shopping" events in your life so that everyone knows what "the grocery shopping" refers to. ... do some grocery shopping today.This is equivalent to nichec's "... go grocery shopping today."From a very personal perspective, I would say "do some ... shopping", not "go ... shopping". The first sounds to me like a chore, the second like an adventure. I don't like shopping This is a sentence from an article in New York Times, discussing decision fatigue.It is also known that when the poor and the rich go shopping, the poor are much more likely to eat during the shopping trip. I am wondering what exactly "during the shopping trip" means here. Do people eat what they buy in a supermarket? Or does it mean they eat what they buy after exiting the supermarket?Thanks in advance. Most large stores in the USA (for example Walmart) have a restaurant or eating corner inside the store so that as you're shopping, you can have a meal or a snack inside the store and then continue shopping in that store or elsewhere. I do it all the time. And large shopping malls invariably have a "food court" that contains many walk-up counter/restaurants selling all types of snacks and meals.When they say shopping it's unlikely they are specifically talking about grocery shopping. Thanks. I was thinking of a small family-run supermarket. I can't get access to the article. However I would not call a trip to a single smaller grocery store a shipping trip nor expect it to bring on decision fatigue. I would expect the article to be refer to a trip to a large overwhelming mall. On this page you'll find an extensive list of over 100 French food vocabulary words. Learning the basic food terms is very important as French culture places a heavy emphasis on food and eating. The French word for food is la nourriture. The following list is broken down into categories including meats, vegetables, breads, dairy and more.The French are the masters of cooking meat dishes. One area of confusion for students learning French is which word to use for chicken. Le poulet is the word used to refer to any dish made with chicken. Je mange du poulet ce soir means Im having chicken tonight.However, la poule refers to the living female chicken. With regards to turkey, la dinde refers to the meat while le dindon refers to the live male animal.French meat vocabulary in Frenchlagneau lamblolie goosela cte de boeuf beef ribla ctelette chopla couenne rindla dinde turkayla viande meatla viande cuite cooked meatla viande hache ground meatla viande maigre lean meatla viande rouge red meatla volaille poultryle bacon baconle bifsteck dalouyau sirloin steakle blanc chicken breast, white meatle boeuf beefle coeur heartle filet fillette foie liverle giber gamele jambon hamle lapin rabbitle mouton muttonle porc porkle poulet chickenle steak de boeuf beef steakle veau vealle venaison venisonles cuisses de grenouilles frogs legsles saucissons sausagesThe French word for fish is le poisson. A related word, la pche refers to the activity of fishing. Hence, Je vais la pche translates to Im going fishing.The word le fruit de mer refers to seafood. Thus, Je commande une pizza aux fruits de mer means Im ordering a seafood pizza. Be careful of the word homard, which means lobster.The -h is an aspirated -h. Thus, when preceded by the direct article (le) lobster is le homard and not lhomard.Fish and seafood vocabulary in Frenchlaiglefin haddocklecrevisse crayfishlespadon swordfishle homard lobsterlautre oysterla coquille Saint-Jacques scallop la crevette prawn/shrimpla daurade sea breamla limande-sole lemon solela lotte monkfishla maquereau mackerella morue codla moule mussella pieuvre octopusla raie skatela sardine sardinela seiche cuttlefishla sole solela truite troutle bar sea basse calmar squidle clam clamle crabe crable crable fltin halibutle merlan whitingle poisson poisson fishle saumon salmonle thon tunaWhile the quintessential French bread is the baguette, there are various kinds of baguettes. A baguette classique, also known as a baguette parisienne or baguette blanche (white baguette) is the most common type of baguette. The second most common baguette is the la baguette de campagne (country side baguette).
